

hm25 Scott

Combining comfort with precise detailing, Fred Scott identified the need for a seating collection that suited the rigours of the corporate environment that acknowledged the need for compact dimensions.

The hm25 Scott collection is a comprehensive seating range comprising armchair, two- and three-seat sofas, benches and low tables, and is ideally suited to reception areas and public spaces. A carefully selected combination of foams, frame materials and cushions ensures that the collection maintains its clean lines in the most demanding of settings.

Power, charging and data units can be installed into the hm25 Scott.

Multi-tone upholstery is available - cushions and body can be upholstered in different fabrics and leathers. Special sizes are also available

Born in 1942 the son of an artisan furniture maker, Scott served his apprenticeship as a cabinet-maker in High Wycombe before gaining a scholarship to London's Royal College of Art in 1963. Widely regarded as the most talented British furniture designer of his generation, his reputation was firmly established with the launch of his classic Supporto series for Hille in 1979.

Later in his career he worked closely with Hitch Mylius to develop hm25 and other upholstery designs. Fred Scott's working life was dogged by recurring illness and he died in 2001. After his death, and in collaboration with Scott's daughter Georgia, Hitch Mylius expanded the range with the addition of hm26 in 2002.
