

hm61 XO

Designed for his award-winning Oyster House, Nigel Coates' hm61 XO seating system is based on two complementary forms that can be used together to create dynamic and flexible arrangements, or as individual seats. A chaise longue, small pouffe and side table complete the range.

Available in a wide range of fabrics and leathers, backs and seats can be upholstered in contrasting fabrics.

Power, data and charging units can be fitted into the sides of the seat units.

Coates was born in Malvern in 1949 and trained at the University of Nottingham and at London's Architectural Association. One of Britain's most original thinkers in architecture, interior, exhibition and product design, Coates' architectural projects include the Centre for Popular Music in Sheffield and the Powerhouse in London. While much of his career has been devoted to teaching, Coates has also designed furniture, lighting and glassware for a number of European companies.

Hitch Mylius' collaboration with Coates began in 1994 with the Tongue chair designed for the Hotel Maritimo in Japan, followed by the Slipper collection, hm60. In 1998 Coates designed the immensely successful hm61 for his prize-winning Oyster House at the Ideal Home exhibition. 2011 saw the launch of the hm63 collection.
